Staff Reflection

Jesus' parable in today's Gospel is based upon customs that are foreign to our modern world and this disconnection creates a challenge for us to grasp Jesus' story. In the time of Jesus, wedding celebrations began with the bridegroom coming to the home of the bride and bringing her to the celebration. The bride's attendants would wait for the bridegroom's arrival and then join the procession back to the celebration. Before the times of streetlights, this required everyone to have their own lamps to illuminate the footpaths along with enough fuel for the entire journey. Walking in the dark is not a good idea and this sheds some light on the wise virgins' reluctance to share their oil. It would be quite embarrassing if the wedding party only made it halfway back to the bridegroom's home.

With this background, we can now reflect on Jesus' parable. The distinction between the wise and the foolish pivots around the oil supply and what the oil represents. Most scholars understand the oil to symbolize our personal spirituality. For example, when we are baptized, we receive a candle as a symbol of the faith gifted to us from our parents and the Church. Initially, it is the responsibility of our parents, Godparents and our local Church to nurture that faith and keep it burning brightly. But as we mature we must take on that responsibility for ourselves. Just as physical, cognitive and emotional maturity requires effort, spiritual maturity will not progress without some work on our part.

The Church breaks the tasks of spiritual formation into five areas: cultivating our theological knowledge; celebrating the liturgy and Sacraments; imitating the ministry of Jesus in our daily life; engaging in regular prayer; participating in community life with fellow believers. Each of these elements are necessary components of our faith and they provide the fuel, if you will, to spiritually sustain us as Catholics. It's important to note that due to our personalities each of us lean into these components with different proportions. Just as we have unique spiritual gifts, we will all have unique spiritual practices. Some of us may revel in theology tomes while others are energized by caring for the poor. Maybe you savor times of personal contemplation and meditation and your neighbor prefers an energetic liturgy. The important thing is that your spiritual life is active, growing and you're not falling asleep.

I invite you to take some time this week and think about your spiritual practices. Are they nurturing that light you received at your Baptism? Maybe Jesus is nudging you to engage in something new?

In the Peace of Christ,
Dan Milani

St. Patrick
PREP
Growing in Faith

We thank all of our parishioners for their prayers and support of our children in our Parish Religious Education Program. We have children attending on Sunday mornings and on Monday afternoons. So, some of you might wonder why there is activity over in the school on a Sunday morning. Just know that our young parishioners are coming to learn of their faith. We thank those attending mass for being extra careful in the school parking lot on Sunday mornings as the 9:30 Mass dismisses and the 11:30 Mass is arriving. As we move into the month of November, we will remember and pray for our deceased loved ones and all the Holy Souls. The children in PREP will also have the opportunity to go to confession this month.
